

Investment Objective

The Fund seeks to outperform the MSCI Emerging Markets Total Return Index at below-benchmark risk of loss over holding periods of 3 to 5 years by investing primarily in attractively priced equities issued by companies located in selected emerging markets with attractive overall valuation levels.

Investment Strategy

The Fund's strategy is designed to capitalize on inefficiencies in the emerging markets through a systematic, quantitative investment process that combines active market and stock selection based on stringent valuation criteria. Active market selection is a key driver of performance and has, in the past, accounted for the majority of value added. The Fund buys into a combination of underpriced markets and holds them till they become slightly overpriced. The country allocation process tends towards equal weighting of markets. Within each market, sector and industry weights are kept close to benchmark levels in order to limit macro-economic risks.

Risk Management

We define risk as the probability and potential size of investment losses (or, in statistical terms, the expectation of a period loss) rather than the variability of returns, and seek to manage it by taking an uncompromising margin-of-safety approach to investing in undervalued markets and securities and constructing a portfolio that is well diversified across countries, sectors and stocks. As a measure of risk-adjusted performance we use the Keppler Ratio, calculated by dividing the average monthly return by the expectation of loss. The table and graph below (Risk-Adjusted Performance) show the Keppler Ratio for the EMHV Fund and the MSCI Emerging Markets Index. Given the high short-term volatility of equity investments, investors in the Fund should have a long-term investment horizon (3 to 5 years minimum) and the ability to tolerate significant short-term fluctuations in share price.
